May 2006

To the Class of 2006

Each time you look over your yearbook - both this first time and many times in the future - you will relive memories of your time here at Indiana University School of Medicine. Scanning the yearbook will bring to mind your friends and colleagues, your favorite faculty members and mentors, the moments when concepts suddenly became knowledge, memorable patients, and the innumerable bits and pieces that wove the fabric of your medical education. Some of your memories will provoke a smile, some a frown, and yet others a tear over the poignancy of an interaction with a patient. This is the nature of our profession that entails a profound responsibility for the patients who put their care in our hands.

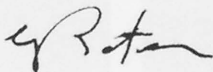

As part of this reverie, I encourage you to recall the nine competencies upon which your curriculum was based and to think about how you are translating them into your own practice.

- Effective Communication
- Basic Clinical Skills
- Using Science to Guide Diagnosis, Management, Therapeutics, and Prevention.
- Lifelong Learning
- Self-Awareness, Self-Care, and Personal Growth
- Social and Community Contexts of Health Care
- Moral Reasoning and Ethical Judgement
- Problem Solving
- Professionalism and Role-Recognition

By doing so, you will become and remain the kind of doctor you would want to take care of your loved ones. For this, I salute you.

Best wishes, and keep in touch.

Sincerely,

D. Craig Brater, M.D.

Oh, you went to the Northwest Center? Was that by choice? Graduates of the Gary campus are all too used to hearing these questions. Sure, there were downsides to being in Gary, like occasionally waking to the sound of gunfire, and having to order your Subway sandwich through bulletproof glass, but these were minor inconveniences that were greatly outweighed by the quality of our educational experience. As evidenced by the pictures on these pages, we used the freedom afforded us by the PBL curriculum to become not just better students, but better people.

Although we came as strangers, we made friendships to last a lifetime. Despite the anxiety of a new place, new people, and higher expectations than we've ever faced, not to mention Vilensky's pain-staking oral practicals or Koritnik's grueling lectures, WE SURVIVED! Through the thick and thin, from late nights in the path lab studying for Dr. Smith's practicals, to waking each other up during Dr. Hoversland's never-ending histo lectures to enduring the extremes of Bell's hyper "dippity do da" personality to Dr. Merkel's chilled out, very much appreciated, liquid bread fests, WE MADE IT. However, one thing's for certain, we couldn't have done it without each other's support. May the hard times we endured fade, but the beautiful memories of new-found friendships, laughter, and comeradeie persevere and form a bond that we will remember throughout our careers. Fort Wayne Center Students: Julia Cavallaro, Ryan DesJean, Heather Easterday, John Heflin, Mandy Huggins, Tony Kaiser, Robyn Lord-Fean, Jamie Lovell, Amrish Malhi, Jenny Miller, Raquel Villavicencio, and Jon Wilhite.

Test Tomorrow...

These two words captured the essence of the SBCME experience. It truly seemed that if there wasn't actually a test tomorrow, there was one looming by the end of the week. It became routine. However, amid the hours of lecture, physical diagnosis sessions, and frenetic studying, SBCME students found a way to have a good time. Whether it was sharing food preparation tips over lunch, experiencing the delirium brought on by late-night, pre-test study sessions, or getting together to watch the latest reality TV craze, we created a great support system and managed to have some fun during two otherwise grueling years.

The wood-paneled walls of the second-year classroom made the perfect backdrop for an afternoon of studying and watching NCAA tournament games.

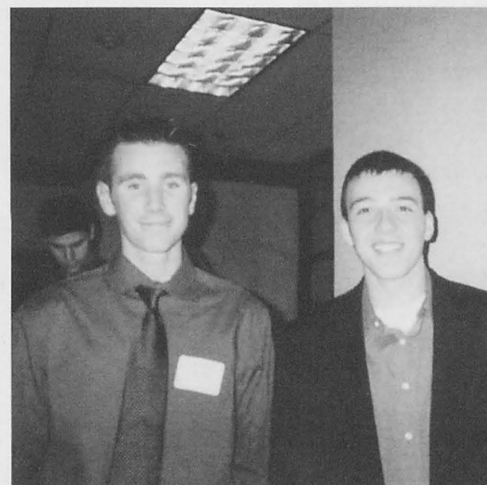

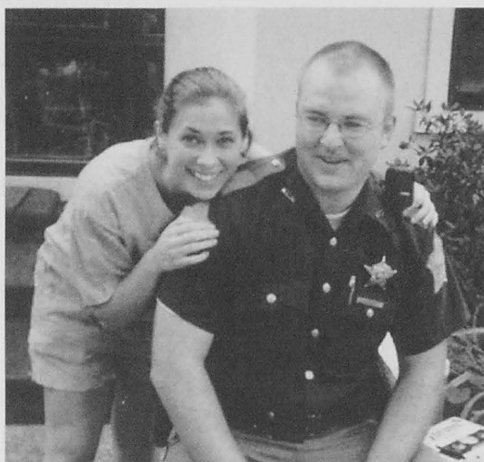

Caloric stimulation was just one of the exam techniques Student-Doctor Jesal Patel (with Layton Elliott) would demonstrate when SBCME parties really started to deteriorate...

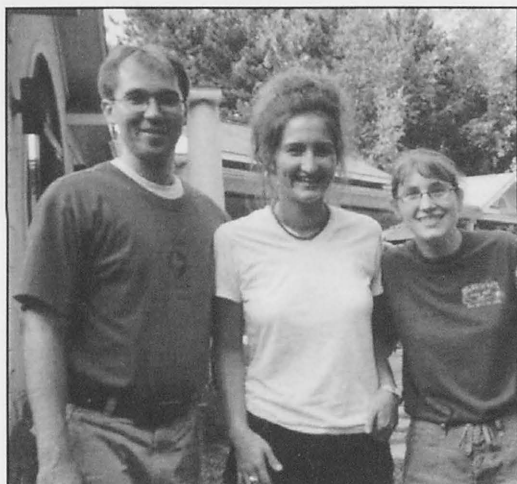

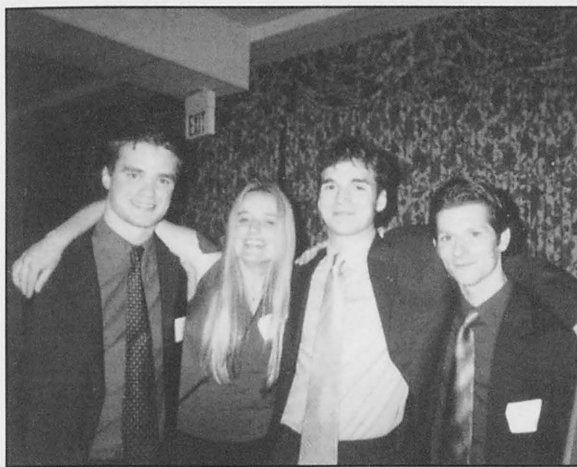

The St. Vitus Dance each January was an opportunity for the SBCME kids to venture down to the "big city" for a night of dinner and dancing.

It wasn't all bad . . . right?

On the surface our experience may have appeared rough. The never-ending days, the impossible tests, our prison cell of a classroom with no windows to jump from. But after taking a longer look, the good memories come creeping back. Julie's picture morphs (mikejohntim), Jeremy's imitation of a certain teacher and the obvious wind tunnel journey he took to get to lecture, Mark playing Will Smith on his boom box before our first anatomy exam, Brian's 'frugality,' a particular teacher's discovery of his 'personal air-conditioner,' the Little Cheers - our home away from home for some of us, and who could forget that doctor's laugh during one of our pediatrics lectures (was he honking at us?). Yes, our experience may have often seemed overwhelming, but looking back, there are many good, and even more great memories that I hope we never forget.

Evening of the Arts

The continuing mission of Evening of the Arts is to provide financial assistance to medical clinics meeting the health care needs of the homeless and working poor of Indianapolis and its surrounding areas. Funds are raised at each year's performance through ticket sales, an art auction, and by donations from area businesses and individual sponsors. Evening of the Arts was started in 1992 by a group of medical students who wanted to showcase the many artistic and musical talents of their colleagues. In 2006, Evening of the Arts celebrated its 15th anniversary.

Each year, Spanish-speaking students from IU School of Medicine and School of Dentistry journey to Calnali, Mexico to provide medical and dental care for the underprivileged. The trip takes place during Spring Break, and the medical students work with faculty members and residents to staff a pediatric clinic. Each day, the group journeys to a different village to hold clinic in schools or gymnasiums. The students from the class of 2006 who have participated are Anna Csitkovits, Jordan Drazer, Kristin Werne, and Emily Willen.

Wheeler Mission

Wheeler Mission is a homeless shelter located in the heart of downtown Indianapolis at the corner of New York and Delaware. The shelter provides free medical care for the indigent two days a week and has been staffed by IUSM physicians and medical students for the last fifteen years. This year there were over 35 students and 20 staff physicians that volunteered their time to this worthy cause.

Spring House Calls

Spring House Calls is the largest annual Office of Medical Service Learning event. Approximately 100 medical students spend a Saturday morning mowing lawns, planting flowers, and spreading mulch at about 30 homes in two Westside neighborhoods served by Wishard clinics. Most of the home owners are elderly and unable to beautify their lawns for spring on their own. They are appreciative that these future doctors are still willing to make a house call.

Music Reviews

by Greg Berman

Brian Wilson Smile

The Beach Boys were always America's answer to England's Beatles. While history has always shined greater on the Beatles' career, it can be argued that the Beach Boys forced the fab four to have to be good enough to remain on top of the pop music world. The Beach Boys were equally effective at starting trends in music, and with Pet Sounds had the best album of all time, at that time. The Beatles responded with Sgt. Peppers, which forced the B Boys back to the drawing board. Brian Wilson, the leader of the Boys, began working on what was to be their masterpiece Smile. Unfortunately, the pressure and drugs led to a well known period of psychosis for Wilson, supposedly involving spending a year in his bedroom, with only a bed and a grand piano in the middle of a giant sand box. So with the help of Van Dyke Parks and Darian Sahanaja, Wilson decided to dig up the scraps, demos and snippets of the project and try to recreate what has been the long lost album of American pop music. The results are gratifying with an entire pop orchestral production, which almost sends you back in time. The only disappointments are that the story may be better than the actual listen, and that the best song (top 10 of all time??), "Good Vibrations", has been released for years.

Sad Lesssons For A Simple Freedom

by Joe Krug

I sit here four days before a very important election. Right now there are Islamic terrorists who want to kill Americans and the American way of life, there are single activist judges making decisions that shape the cultural fabric of this land, there is a glut of wasteful spending keeping resources away from projects that are truly needy, all the while there are millions of regular citizens who simply want to live a good life.

This has been the worst election cycle that I have ever seen. The behavior of career politicians, groomed to run for office since the day they were born, sends incredibly poor messages to us, our kids, and the entire world.

Despite the fact that the election has not even begun, there are thousands of lawyers, hundreds of federal election officials, media-hungry civil rights activists and those too dumb to master a pen and paper already waiting to pounce on any vote that they find unacceptable. The message—if you can't win fair, sue.

Brain Scan

Charlie, Francis, Ivan and Jeanne are four eager med students on Ob/Gyn.

Charlie delivered one more baby than Francis, and Ivan delivered one more baby than Jeanne. Charlie and Francis delivered 10 more babies than Ivan and Jeanne. Together, Charlie, Francis, Ivan and Jeanne delivered 60 babies. Who delivered the most babies and how many did he/she deliver. (The real question is, how many deliveries did our eager students get signed off in their handy-dandy palm pilots?)

9. "Hey, doll. Could you scare up another round for our table over here? And tell the cook this is low grade dogfood. I've had better food at the ballgame, you know? This steak still has marks from where the jockey was hitting it."
8. "Oh, this your wife, huh? A lovely lady. Hey baby, you must've been something before electricity... You're a lot of woman, you know that? Yeah, wanna make 14 dollars the hard way?"
7. "Hey Smalls! My dinghy is bigger than your whole boat!"
6. "Oh, this is the worst-looking hat I ever saw. What, when you buy a hat like this I bet you get a free bowl of soup, huh? Oh, it looks good on you though."
5. "Hey this is my friend Mr. Wang... No offense."
4. "Let's go, while we're young."
3. "Ugh, the people here ... look at that one! Last time I saw a mouth like that, it had a hook in it."
2. "Hey, did somebody step on a duck?"
1. "Boy, I tell ya' now I know why tigers eat their young."

Rock for Riley

*I*n just its second year, Rock for Riley has established itself as much more than just a benefit concert. It is now a recognized philanthropic event, which will benefit Riley Hospital for Children for years to come.

Rock for Riley moved this year to the Murat Centre, which showcased Wilco in front of a sold-out crowd of 2,500. The concert was featured on 92.3 WTTS, in the local newspapers (Indianapolis Star, Nuvo, IN-Take), and on the Fox Morning Show.

Jeff Tweedy, Wilco

Through both corporate sponsors and fundraisers, Rock for Riley raised an unrestricted donation of $223,523 for Riley Children's Hospital. This donation was a contribution to the Phase V Inpatient Expansion about to begin at Riley. This expansion should open within the next ten years.

Not only did Rock for Riley increase its donation from just over $25,000 in 2004, Rock for Riley increased the magnitude of the event with an explosive concert at a larger venue. It should be exciting to see what Rock for Riley has in store for 2006!

The Freshman Review

What do you get when you give a video camera to a group of second year medical students with too much time on their hands? Three hours of movies and live sketch comedy, known as the Freshman Review. Class members filmed parodies of their favorite movies, television shows, as well as some creative original animation work that looked something like a South Park Episode. If you were there (and you missed out if you weren't) you saw a Med School version of the Matrix, some variations on Queer Eye for the Straight Guy, a different take on the Competency system, and of course a sketch that made some Circle Center Mall Security Guards think that one of our class members might be a terrorist.

The IU chapter of AMWA has been very active in recent years, bringing in both local and national speakers for lunch-time lectures. These talks are geared towards all medical students, male and female, and bring real-world information that is lacking in the medical school curriculum. Officers were also able to get involved at a national level by attending the 2004 national AMWA conference in San Diego. Rebecca Hoban, Abby Brinkman, and Heather Kuhlenschmidt attended lectures on women's health as well as talks to help students prepare for residency and beyond.

Society of Latinos

Jennifer Maya, 2006 President, represented IUSM at a poster session workshop specifically geared toward Latino medical students at the National Hispanic Medical Association Conference in Washington, DC. Her poster highlighted the various community service and outreach activities that SOL has participated in since its creation in 2002.

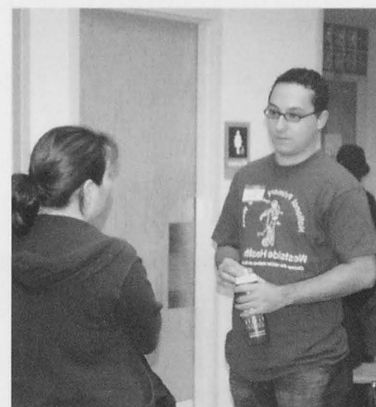

Dr. Javier Sevilla (Family Medicine) has been the sponsor of SOL since it began our freshman year and has laid the groundwork for a successful club open to medical students of ALL backgrounds who are interested in Latino culture and improving healthcare for this often underserved group.

SOL has participated in several outreach programs, extending healthcare information and services to Indianapolis's growing Latino community in both Spanish and English through numerous health fairs at places such as Fiesta Indianapolis and Las Palmas Apartments just to name a few. They also have helped clean up and repair local homes through the Spring House Calls program. In addition, officers have attended national conferences, representing IU well. Finally, they wouldn't be Latinos without the annual Autumn and Christmas parties. ¡Dale caliente!

FAMILY

Love, Giving, Sharing . . . Forever

Throughout the past four years, there have been several monumental changes in our lives, but perhaps some of the most important are those involved in starting our own families and the beginning of new lives. Our families are the motivation which propels us to succeed and the glue that keeps us together when we feel like everything's falling apart. They truly are our comfort, our strength and our inspiration. To all those dear to us, who have supported us throughout the years, we thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

As an OB-GYN intern, Maryann will be delivering lots of babies next year, but we'll see how long it takes until these two lovebirds get a visit from the stork themselves! Tsarai and Maryann Chimhanda, June 18, 2004.

Peds must have given Jon Wilhite baby fever! After having their precious baby boy, Jackson during the first year, he and wife, Jackie, went on to have a beautiful baby girl, Claire. Congrats mom and dad!

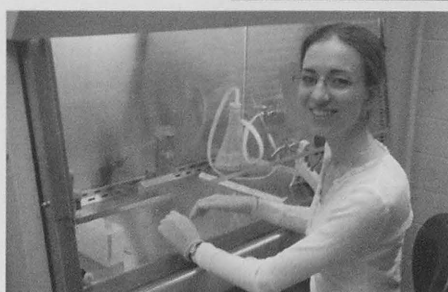

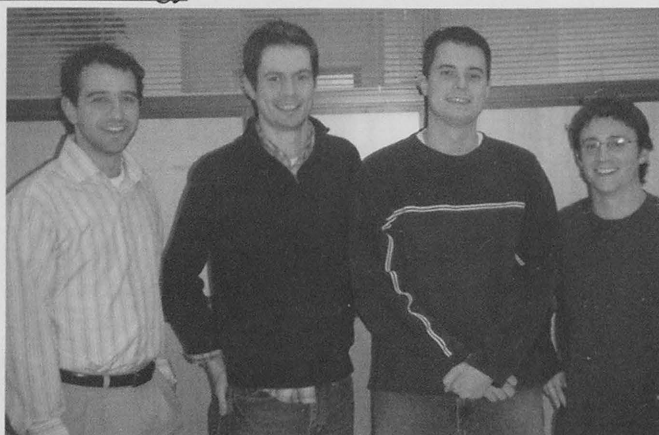

The only thing sweeter than the cake June 22, 2002 was the bride and groom, Vicky and Tim Campbell (MDPhD, began IUSOM 2002).

senior banquet

Graduation weekend began on Friday night with an evening at the Indiana Roof Ballroom, made up of live piano, complimentary libations, an excellent meal and a speech by some of the most esteemed members of the IU Faculty. Our keynote speech was given by Dr. Robert Goulet, Jr., the Medical Director of the IU Cancer Center, a Professor of Surgery at IU, the father to one of our class's graduates, and the physician to many of our classmates, friends, and relatives. The audience gave a standing ovation after hearing his speech, aptly titled "Between the Lines" which discussed how some of the most important aspects of our medical education are not taught directly in the curriculum, but are instead found between the lines. It was a great evening for family, friends, faculty, and memories of four great years at Indiana University School of Medicine.

Abigail D. Brinkman

October 7, 1977- October 24, 2005

Ever since the moment I found out we lost Abby, my closest friend, her image still appears in my mind: beautiful woman, huge bright smile, delicate features, carefully put together, unusually blonde hair, confident posture, welcoming demeanor, take-charge attitude, witty comments, feminine style. This is probably the same Abby that most people remember. But, connected to this image in my mind is what I knew of Abby's soul. Abby was the most committed friend that I will ever have. We did everything together, and we stayed very busy with weekend trips, yoga, shopping, the gym, vacation, studying, the races, days at her parent's lake house, nights out, concerts, and countless hours doing almost nothing. I truly depended on Abby and she always came through, big things or little. She was spontaneous, adventurous, full of joy and a truly good-hearted person. We had many exciting adventures together. She was the truest friend anyone could ask for, and she performed the duty proudly, knowing it was one of the most important things a person could do.

Not only was she a committed friend to me, she was wholeheartedly committed to all her friends, including her other best friends, Maria and Allie. She made time for everyone, and although she had many friends, no one felt shorted. She had an amazing way of making sure everyone knew how important they were to her. For as committed as she was to her friends, she was many times more committed to her family. She and her family transcended the traditional parent-child and brother-sister relationships. They were all truly friends and gathered often – for church, for dinner, for vacation, for the symphony, for mother-daughter weekend trips. She and her mother were tremendously close, sharing everything. She and her father were also extremely close, displaying mutual respect and admiration. Her parents gave her tremendous support and were the foundation that she stood on. Abby was very proud of this bond. Abby was also committed to children, and to medicine, and to teaching. She was committed to music, and to church. She loved Columbus, her hometown, and she loved Indiana. But she was also in love with the rest of the world, and was committed to seeing it all. As I say all of this, I realize just how many things Abby was committed to. Some of us would have been spread thin, but not Abby – she had so much to give and she never held back.

Early on in fourth year class scheduling, Abby knew she wanted to do an away rotation in Belize to practice rural, tropical medicine. She had fallen in love with the country and people while there for an undergraduate tropical ecology course. She found the elective rotation at Hillside Clinic in Punta Gorda by searching for medical volunteer opportunities in Belize. She already knew much about the different cultures in Belize, knew what living conditions to expect, and was excited about her duties there, knowing she would be preparing for a pediatrics residency. Abby was a very experienced and con-scientific traveler and found joy in immersing herself in other cultures. She was excited about traveling through Belize and Guatemala in her free time and couldn't wait to go scuba diving in one of the world's best diving locations. She wasn't in Belize for more than a few days before she emailed all of us an update – one of several messages describing her experiences in detail. She told us about the water tank on the top of the building which supplied their shower water and occasionally ran out, about the beauty of the surrounding area with the juxtaposition of the jungle, mountains and ocean, about the frustration of not having basic medical conveniences countered by her feelings of happiness helping those whose need was greatest, about the clinic's winning campaign against lice in one Mayan village, and about watching the Colts game with a Belikin beer in a small village bar. Abby was truly a practicing physician in Belize, at times running the clinic while others were making home visits. She turned 28 years old while there, and her parents came to Belize for a family vacation to celebrate with her. The next weekend, the last weekend Abby planned to be in Belize, she went with other clinic volunteers to Placencia, a small diving town not far from Punta Gorda. Here she went on the scuba excursion which ultimately claimed her life.

The tragedy of her loss is understood by everyone, but deeply and indescribably felt by those who were closest to her. Her family and friends have had extraordinary support from friends and others in the community, including the IU School of Medicine. The impact Abby had on her peers has been evident.

From a very young age, Abby knew she wanted to be a pediatrician and nothing distracted her from that goal; she truly dedicated her life to this. While at IUSOM, she was also involved with many school organizations. The IU medical community has made many great efforts to honor Abby and her life-long commitment. The administration awarded Abby her Doctor of Medicine degree along with her Class of 2006 colleagues, presenting it to her parents at the commencement ceremony. They have also sponsored a scholarship, called the Abigail D. Brinkman Tropical Medicine Fund, which will pay expenses for a medical student or resident to spend an elective month in Belize at the Hillside Clinic in Punta Gorda. Abby would have returned there year after year to help the people of Belize. Her legacy will be carried on at the clinic as well; they have named the rotation, "The Abby Rotation". The Department of Pediatrics will also honor Abby by naming her an honorary member of the 2006 entering intern class. For as much as Abby loved the world, Indiana was her home; her family was here and she held Riley hospital in high esteem. No doubt she would have chosen to train at IU. She had a special knack for teaching and would have been a wonderful resident. In addition to the recognition by the medical community, both Columbus East High School and Hanover College, her high school and undergraduate institution, have set up scholarships to honor her memory.

Abby had a powerful character and the courage to fight for her dreams.

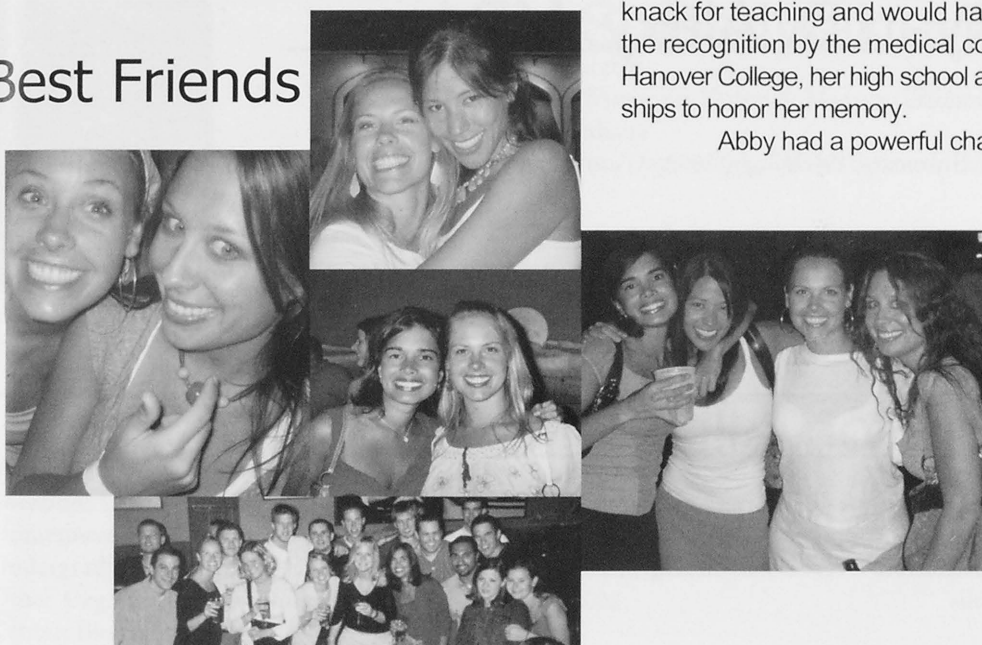

She was full of joy, adventure and was a committed friend, daughter and sister. She truly loved medicine and was dedicated to pediatrics. We laughed so much together. I will miss her immensely every day, and having known her will continue to change my life and all those lives were touched by her.
